TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

Thomas Dupin was a very useful contributor and member of the research team during his internship in our group. He is a self-starter and has the spirit to take on new challenges, work well with others and learn quickly. In his work with us, he has explored new challenges and helped us with insight into programming in R and data visualizations. Thomas has a can-do attitude, could independently analyze and solve problems, adapted quickly to changes or additions to his work plan, and worked well both locally and remotely during times that included Covid-19 restrictions. He produced solid code and his rigor has greatly benefitted the quality of the implemented solutions.

I found Thomas to be a very pleasant and considerate team player that would be a valuable asset to have in any IT project and I wish him the best for his future.
